

Who has benefited more from globalization: developed or developing countries:-

Outlines:-

1- Introduction

2- What is globalization

3- How globalization is benefited for both developed and developing countries.

(a) Globalization helps the country to make good relations with other countries and organizations.

(b) Globalization develops economy
by providing trade opportunities in other countries.

(c) - The culture of one country
diffuses in other countries because of globalization.

(d) Globalization provides the scholarship opportunities in foreign countries.

(e) - Through globalization transfer technology increases.

(f) Because of globalization people humans come to know about their basic rights.

4- Developed countries get more benefits from globalization than developing countries.

(a) Developed countries has veto power in international organization use it for their own benefits.

(b) Developed countries go import raw material and labor at cheap prices and export goods at expensive prices.

(c) The ~~trade~~ markets are dominated by the goods of developed countries with high tariff.

(d) Globalization is the way through which the culture of developed countries dominate and diffuses.

~~(e) By dominating the major technology~~

(e) through scholarships the transfer of talent from developing countries to developed countries.

5- How developing countries get to be more benefits from globalization.

(a) Open industries and use raw material for manufacturing the goods.

(b) Imposed high tariff on foreign goods and increases the development of local goods.

(c) Developing countries made policies through which they impress the foreign investors to invest in their countries.

(d) Developing countries should made policies to ~~stop~~ slow down the process of brain drain.

(e) In order to protect their culture they started cultural programs at an international level.

6- Conclusion.

INTRODUCTION:-

As man is a social animal. He is unable to live in isolation. They need others in order to fulfill their needs. If man lives in isolation they then they feel depression, deficiency of goods and unable to fulfill their basic needs. Similarly countries are global being. No one country live in isolation they should need the other countries in order to fulfill the demands of their countries. So countries depend on each other and the world become global image. From the globalization the developed countries as well as developing countries both are benefited but the developed countries takes the major advantages from it while the developing countries still faces some hindrance in it. The developing countries should made those policies that are benefitted for them. It is helpful for both countries because of making good relations with each other, has more markets, scholarship opportunities and transfer the technology from one country to another. But

The developed countries get more benefits by taking raw material at cheap prices and made relations with developed countries for their own interest. Through the scholarship programs the developed countries get the talented humans from developing countries. The developed countries should make their policy through which they use their raw material for their own and slow down the process of brain drain and promote their culture through media at international level. So globalization helps for every country but every countries should their policies that are benefit for them.