- 1) Introduction
- 2) Foreign Policy and National interests
- 3) How National interests of Pakistan shaped our foreign policy choices.
  - a) A new born state: Foreign Policy choices
  - b) Joining CENT and SEATO to neutralize threat of India
  - c) Joining US-led bloc against spread of communism and Post cold war.
  - d) Relations with Muslim states: OIC in 1970s.
  - e) Rise of China and increasing relation: economic, political and security.

4) Conclusion

Pakistan came into being at the time when cold war was beginning in nascent state.

After independence Pakistan was face to face with economic, political and security threats.

Economy was in "infant stage", lack of industry, absence of skilled and Indian stubbornness to release the frozen funds.

Moreover, security from India was an existential threat to Pakistan. Pakistan fought two wars in initial years.

Being a Muslim state relation with Muslim countries was the target of foreign policy.

To secure their interest joining western blocs, containment of communism, and bonhomie with China and European countries shaped foreign policy accordingly.

Relation between National interest and Foreign Policy.

Foreign policy and national interest are intertwined. They can't be separated. To be more precise, foreign policy is the tool that is used to secure national interests.

Foreign policy is designed in the way to secure national interests in a best possible way.

Pakistan's National interests and foreign policy choices.

- a) A new born state and realignment of interests with foreign policy.

When came into being Pakistan was facing economic, political and security threats. The interests were secure national territorial integrity, and economic security. To do so Quaid-e-Azam focused on good relation neighbour countries and deepening relation with India. However, Kashmir and some other issues failed to realize this. Moreover, Pakistan extended friendly relation with Muslim countries. Joining western bloc.

Due to security threat from and economic compulsion, Pakistan joined western led bloc against communist blocs.

In response US helped to modernize army and gave economic support. This infuriated USSR which time and again vetoed resolutions on Kashmir.

USSR attack on Afghanistan and Pakistan as frontline fighters.

To contain communism and get military assistance and economic benefits, Pakistan helped USA and its allies to defeat USSR. Radicalized society and Islamization of army and policies to fuel the support for against USSR revolutionized domestic political landscape.

After
After end of cold war differences again emerged with western bloc war on terror after 9/11 and Pakistan economic and independence on west again pushed country into western bloc. Joined NATO to defeat Afghan Taliban. Dollars flowed into Pakistan but the rise of terrorism started that strained relation with Afghanistan west

Ideological interest and organization of Islamic countries (OIC)

It was Pakistan's hardest desire to keep good relation with Muslim countries. Pakistan relation with Muslim countries also entails economic relations.
Remittances from Gulf states also keep them closer. Pakistan provide security to Saudi Arabia and always have come forward to help Pakistan

China and Pakistan foreign Policy

After 1962 war Pakistan and China came closer against a common adversary - India.

Economic compulsion of Pakistan always dominated Pakistan-China relations. Pakistan helped China to bring USA closer. In the current political dynamics Pakistan and China are on the same page: BPEC

Current Political Landscape and Pakistan's interests

USA exit from Afghanistan, Ukraine war, and US-China trade war has left few but tough foreign policy choices to keep its <sup>interests</sup> secured.

Having economic, political, security and technological interests will all states, it is in Pakistan

Interest to remain neutralized.

Pakistan shouldn't join any bloc politics and should strike balance between US and China.

Strategic culture.

Strategic culture is intricate web of beliefs, norms, values, and aspirations of a state. The same values, norms, and beliefs paves road for how to use military of a state to secure their interests. In short, strategic culture is the system of beliefs norms and values that define the use of military of specific state.

Strategic culture and policy statics and dynamics

What a state's people believe and what are their priorities design their policy dynamics and statics

Example-

Strategic culture of Pakistan is security state, Muslim brotherhood, lack of strategic depth, security threat from India, India hegemony

Resultantly, these cultures help in understanding Pakistan's policy dynamic and statics. It helps us understand why Pakistan is expanding its military power. Moreover, it also highlights Pakistan's policy towards Muslim's states.

Pakistan alliance with China to counter Indian hegemony also reflects Pakistan strategic culture, last but not the least, lack of strategic depth makes it imperative for Pakistan to rationalize relation with Afghanistan.

So, it is the strategic culture that helps us understand Policy status and dynamics.

QNO. 8.

Skeptical view of Globalization

Globalization is the political, economic and technological interconnectedness of nations across the globe. Globalization has turned the world into a single global village. However, it has proved the tool of neo-liberal world order to keep people colonized and marginalized. Globalization has helped the developed world to extract wealth from poor nations.

Cons of the globalization

- 1) Widened North south divide.
- 2) Globalization though connect

North and South technologically but it has also led to economic inequality. The developed nation under the garb of free market economy extracted wealth to developed nations. According Pew research centre survey only eight richest persons have wealth equal to 3.6 billion poorest. Credit of this goes to Globalization.

Globalization paved the way for outcompeting local industries by Multinational companies.

In the hyper connected world MNCs outcompete the local industries and establish monopolies. Resultantly they impose the prices of their choice irrespective of domestic rules.

Globalization and gender disparity

Globalization has caused shift traditional economy to cash economy in which females have less stakes - Moreover, Globalization increased joblessness, most of the victims are women. Resultantly gender disparity has further increased.

Globalization and Neo-imperialism

Tools of neo-liberalism such as World Bank and IMF, have continued to keep the global south colonized. These institutions are being used to control over politics, economics and security related issues. Recent IMF extended deal is a glaring example. All economic policies are designed as per IMF demands.

QNO. 6.

Dependency Theory :

Dependency theory posits that it's the neo-liberal economic world order that keeps the poor always poor and rich always rich. This theory is rooted from Marxist theories. According to this theory core countries (developed countries) use tools such International Monetary Fund (IMF) World Bank (WB) and World Trade Organization (WTO) to extract wealth from poor countries (periphery) to core states and keep them poor forever. These tools are used to keep influence in poor or dependent countries, in policy, economic and security spheres.

How imperialistic pol
Keep influence in Global South..

i) IMF, WB and WTO work under the influence of powerful states.

As the contribution of big powers in these institutions is higher, so, they have higher say in these institutions working mechanism.
Consequently, they are being used by powerful states as political and economic tools against the dependent states.

Example:

Pakistan's economic compulsion is being used as a tool to influence its political, economic and security related decision making process.

Pakistan has to make America happy to get IMF loan. As a result, America will demand say in foreign policy of Pakistan. Failing to do so, Pakistan will surely be a sovereign default in the absence IMF program as happened with Sri Lanka.

WTO and Free trade.

World Trade Organization controls the trade related rules and regulation across the globe. It forces the states to keep border open for free trades. Multinational corporations belongs to powerful western states, resultanty, capture the markets and influence economic and political decisions of respective state.

In favour of developed states.

World Bank.

Western countries have greater say in the decisions of World Bank. Again to secure grants and programmes from World Bank south states have to keep the North happy. Resultantly, southeast states have to do some concessions and follow the dictation of North.

QNO. 7.

Bubble of globalization has Busted.

It is an established fact that world is now more connected than it was 10 to 15 years ago. Globalization has the world onto a global village. Technological advancement fueled this interconnectedness.

After COVID-19 the debate about the deglobalization has initiated because people had closed borders, supply chain disrupted and people-to-people contact remained extremely low.

However, the matter of fact is that globalization is not a theory which can be reversed but it is process of connectivity which can be decreased but can't be reversed.

Here are few examples that signals decrease in globalization.

Populist trends

Populism suffered heavy blow to globalization

Populism, being an extreme form of nationalism, favours domestic interests over collective. Trump era is a glaring example. His decoupling trends from China, trade war, exit from Paris climate treaty showed that globalization is slowing.

Brexit

British exit from European Union highlights that interconnectedness is replaced protectionist trends.

- Regional Blocs such as BRICS, ASEAN and EU
- US-China trade war a threat <sup>global</sup> connectivity.
