

Q.2 Precise:

Ans: Pakistan: A Hard Country

Anatol Lieven in his book Pakistan a Hard Country said that the unity and discipline of Pakistani soldiers could only be toppled by awakening their religious beliefs that conflict with their patriotism. He said that this could only happen if US invades the country without assistance from Army; as if had injured their morale in the past. But even that would evoke only a few affectees from within. He explained how regional identity is engraved in the souls of Pakistanis, by highlighting 2008 elections where PPP didnot win in Punjab and neither the Punjab based Muslim League in any other province; and said that they only unite under the ambit of Islam or Army. He further mentions that Norwegian executive said Pakistanis cannot unite behind anything, and if he stands to preach a revolt they would reject him because of his language, race, or caste.

Q13 Reading Comprehension:

Ans: 1- Hein Guderian appeared to have a natural talent! He had an initiative, he used to lead the troop from the front, and was a bully to anyone who would get in his way. This is what made him a talented and rebellious commander at the same time.

2- Guderian was the first one to introduce the tank in the Army and used it as operative weapon. He favored the strategic use of panzer forces, without worrying about his own unprotected and far-extended flanks. These were considered his offensive tactics during war. He did not care much about communicating with superior and was not a team player. These tactics of him were considered offensive.

3- Failure of General Buse to rescue the trapped German troops at Kutuin ignited the verbal spat between Hitler and Guderian. He was trying to convince Hitler to retreat the abandoned army from Baltic Sea, but Hitler disagreed to it.

4- After the disagreement and verbal dispute, Hitler relieved Guderian from his command and this saved him from becoming involved in war crimes. This paid off very well for Guderian as a blessing in disguise.

5- If Guderian had not been sacked, he would have been involved in many war crimes, like number of German generals were under the reign of Hitler.

Q:7:

Ans: In this selfish time, everyone worries about themselves only, and don't care about others. There is no love and respect left in people's hearts. Moral ethics are going down. And this selfishness of ours is not only confined to people, this is how we look towards our country as well. Have the thought ever reached our mind that the country that used to be filled with love and joy is now filled with terrorism now. It is still not so late, If we truly love our country, we should look within ourselves and try to correct our wrongdoings.

We are the hope of future; we should eradicate the existing difference of sectarianism, rich and poor, superior and inferior. We should work together to make the future of this country better. Pray that people of this country start working together for its betterment as a unit; because If Pakistan is alive we are alive.
