If this is so then why does the political dynasties undermine the right of an individual? The fundamental principles equality, accountability fairness doesn't exist in the democracies why dynastic rule establishes dynasties reduce the legitimacy of the country and poses many negative effects overall on the government. There is no open and transparent procedures taken in the country once dynastic rule came in power it is pure authoritarianism. No transparency means no fair electoral processes take place and turns to the decline of democracy. The leadership of a country lies in competency, educability but due to the dynastic politics the leadership remain^s limited to only 1 family without any knowledge and competent.

many feudal lords and business elites took the charge in politics. It impedes the progressive growth of the institutions and equal representation of the common people who do not belong to the dynastic blood. The rural areas are deeply embedded in feudalism an ordinary individual became a mental slave of their ruling elites.

No structure
no argument
No coherence

There is a dire need to reform and de-politicize the institutions by strengthening and protecting the fundamental rights of citizens moreover, guarding against manipulation, preventing election interferences, by accountability practices, and also by expanding the democracy, supporting civil society and other institutions from social evils (corruption, bribery) and last but not the least by giving a awareness to the common citizen.

Incoherent

about their rights.

For a real change it is important for the political parties to shift from the personal beliefs, linguistic associations and regional biases. Although it is not easy to achieve this transformation, it needs time and effort for substantial progress.

Abraham Lincoln rightly said "Nations do not die from invasion; they die from ^{Irrelevant.} internal rotteness"
