Rough Draft

Anton Liven in his book Pakistan a hard country says only thing that can destroy discipline and unity is if enough soldiers face a moral dilemma in which their conscience as Muslims collides with obedience to their commanders. As I see it, it is only possible if the US invades part of Pakistan and the army command fails to give orders to resist this invasion. Subservience to Washington's demand has caused severe problems of Morale in the armed forces. I have been told by all soldiers of all ranks in an event of US troops landing in Pakistan, Armed Forces personnel would revolt and fight the invaders; however, this would not turn into a nationalistic movement rather a civil war. Anton Livan further states that among Pakistani society

Antal Lieven in his book Pakistan a hard country says that the only thing that could potentially destroy unity and discipline is if enough soldiers face a moral dilemma where their conscience and honour as Muslims clashes directly with obedience to their commanders. As far as I can see the only thing possible of achieving this feat is that if US invades a part of Pakistan and military commanders fail to give orders to resist it. Perceived subordination to Washington's demands has caused severe demoralising morale in armed forces. I have been told by soldiers of all ranks that in an event of US invasion and receiving commands not to fight against invaders Pakistan's armed forces personnel would revolt; however, this would not turn into a nationalistic movement as the only single identity is Islamists or

Comprehension

(Q.1)

Guderian a talented and rebellious commander

Guderian was a talented commander as he possessed several qualities which are required of a commander such as he possessed the ability to not only take initiative but was also able to bully and get his way whenever his peers did not agree with him along with these qualities he was brave too as he did not lead his armies from behind, he led his army from the front. These qualities of his are evident as he was only person who introduced the tank to the Army and how he commanded the motorized XIX Army corps despite being talented he was also a rebellious commander.

as he seemed aloof and did not care to communicate with his superiors not only that he disobeyed orders, this shows that he was not a team player at all which is made clear by examining his dialogue with Hitler when he even started shouting at Hitler ~~once~~ he refused to retreat the army.

(Q2)

Offensive tactics of Guderian during ways:

The element of surprise was the key to Guderian's attack tactics. He would use the tanks to thrust deeply into enemy lines furthermore he made sure all supplies required by this panzer force were transported by trucks organically - he was not concerned with his vanguard and unprotected flanks, this offensive tactic allowed Guderian's forces to keep up with the tank core until they could fuse with it.

(Q3)

Guderian's disagreement with Hitler

One view was captured Guderian kept his forces moving in order to capture Moscow however, they outran their own supply lines and were hopelessly cut off. Guderian insisted that the forces retreat and be transported across the Baltic sea, but Hitler refused this caused the disagreement between Guderian and Hitler.

(Q4)

Relief from command a blessing in disguise

After intense face off between Hitler and Guderian he was relieved from command by Hitler who told him he believe he had have enough and was unfit to command anymore this proved to be a blessing in disguise for Heinz Guderian as Germany eventually lost and many generals were booked for being involved in war crimes but Guderian was saved.

(6.5)

Outcome if Guderian had not been sacked

If Guderian had not been sacked, most probably he would have disobeyed Hitler's orders and would have asked the army to retreat, which would have resulted in his death and if not he would later have been tried for or charged with committing war crimes.

(Q.7)

Rough Draft

In these greedy times everyone works for his own benefit. No one cares about anyone else. No person genuinely loves or cares. Morality is on the decline. Not only are we selfish in regards to other people but we also place our selfish whims above our country. Have we ever thought that once upon a time people used to love each other but today the air is of terrorism. Still nothing has been lost. If we genuinely love Pakistan and try to identify our own faults we can eradicate them. We are the foundation layers of the future. We should remove the differences of rich and poor along with worse ~~and~~ or best and also let go of our sectarian differences. We should all get united and work towards improvement of this country. We should pray that all Pakistanis become united and worry about Pakistan because if Pakistan remains only those all of us remain.

In these selfish times everyone is working for their own selfish interests. No one is worried about another. None has in his heart genuine love or care. Characterlessness is on the rise. Not only are we selfish in regards to other people but we also place our selfish whims and desires above the wellbeing of our country. Have we ever thought that once in this very country people used to love each other but today the air is filled with terror. Even now nothing has truly been lost! If we genuinely love Pakistan and try to identify the faults within ourselves we can eradicate them. We are foundation layers of tomorrow. We need to let go of sectarian divisions and also remove the difference between the rich and poor of better and worse. We should all get united and work towards the betterment of future of Pakistan. We should pray that all Pakistanis become united and become concerned about this country because if Pakistan remains only then all of us remain.
