Q. NO: - 02: _____ ?

The most suitable title of this précis is;
Martin Luther's hope of equality and justice.

Avoid dates

Add dream

In 1963, Martin Luther King narrates that he has a dream that his nation will achieve success. There will be equality and brotherhood. He hopes that people of an oppressed state of Mississippi will have equality and justice. He wishes to see his children living in a nation which values their character, not color. He also hopes that there will be no any kind of discrimination in Alabama. In the end, he concludes that if we achieve all the above maneuvers, then on one day a nation ~~stuck~~ stuck in darkness will be able to transform itself into a nation that values the equality and brotherhood, and with this hope we will be able to remove the clouds of disparity.

Q. NO. 07. _____ ?

Translation

One who moves a step ahead gets more success. Nature embraces him with success, not an officer or a system. We should have a faith that nature will also embrace us with success. Struggles that are not valued by people are valued by God. You should have faith on this as you have on your existence. Hazrat Sheikh Saedi nawateri that "Never ask from God according to your limits, rather by appreciating his supremacy". It is possible that I may not be of significant value but the giver's supremacy make me a king. He has many many ways to bless us.
