the countries. For instance if we go in the annals of history, it is evident from the incidents that there is no permanent friend and no permanent rival as far as foreign policy is concerned. In the war of 1965, Pakistani ally US cut off military aids to Pakistan when Pakistan was in need of help. At that time it was China who provided military assistance to Pakistan during the war including the provision of weapons, ammunition and training. The lack of US support for Pakistan during the 1965 war had significant impact on the relationship between the two countries. Therefore, US was proven as a good-weather ally to Pakistan.
