(1) The thing on which the writer has expressed his grief was that, apparently, we judge others on the basis of their physical appearance, not by his works. We often value those things which fascinate us rather than to know the traits of it. So, we should act like an artist as he does gave ^{to impart} the same quality for what the thing known

(2) The difference between an ordinary man and an artist is that an ordinary man give value thing on the basis of their physical appearance. He thinks that only beauty can satisfies his spiritual desire. While an artist first know the value of work and its quality. Then he gives ^{value} to it according to his traits and characteristics to satisfy his soul.

(3) We make our lives beautiful and charming by giving fair judgements based on work and reality. Instead of giving value to physical appearance. When we assess the things according to what traits they possessed, it do justice which feels calm and satisfy our spiritual desire.

(4) The writer actually wants to say that beauty is not a source which makes our lives beautiful. Although, it is an essential part of our life, it cannot give us a spiritual desire to make us happy.

(5) I ~~do~~ disagree with the statement that art and beauty affect our practical life and morals. Yes, beauty is ~~the~~ important part of our life but it does not give satisfaction and pleasure to our soul. It is like that when we think about something or we do something without ^{being} considering its reality. Either it will not make sense
