All our life we assess people. We keep looking for friends but find enemies at every step. Friends have to be found. Enemies are ^{available} ready made. Again that question is appearing in mind that who is the enemy. Every human has hundreds of people in their life. One has to spend life with all of them. We cannot live alone. Family, relatives, neighbours, local people, acquaintance, friends, and many other people are part of our life. It is the matter of whole life. We can't understand many people but still cannot leave them. Sometimes due to compulsion or expediency we have to keep the relationship.
