

Parents - The ultimate source of love and affection

Parents, both father and mother, play key role in nurturing a child, and they should have specific skills for better development of their children. The educated mother plays important part in developing modest manners and healthy skills in her child, which ultimately reflect in his success. The accomplishments of successful persons witness the teachings of their parents. Their parents teach them lessons of punctuality, hardworking, and commitment and skills of multidisciplinary personality. Parents try much hard in childrens' up-bringing so, children should oblige to remain calm and respectful with them and facilitate them fully when they are in need. They should provide medicine to their sick parents and if any of them passes away, they should manage all their funeral duties. No doubt, parents affection can not be replaced.

Words in Passage = 374

Words in Precis = 127