Title: "Parents, a blessing of God" Date: [] [] []

Both father and mother play irreplaceable role in bringing up of child. In my vision, both parents should have following characters for better development of their children. The basic feature is education proven a fundamental part for growing a child like that, of a qualified mother will definitely teach her child good manners, obedience, discipline and respectfulness. Educated parents make their responsible and dutiful. Successful persons give credits of their achieving goals to their education given by their parents.

The qualified parents make their children responsible, work devoted, loyal with homeland and a polished personalities. All because of their parents, who spend all of their money, time and have paid their attentions in grooming of their children. Therefore, it is also duty of their children that they should be obedient, and be their supporters in phase of their weakness. Like that if any of them is ill, their children should consult with doctor, given medication and look after them. If any of them passes away, they should arrange their funeral. I.e. to religion or their will. In short, no one can replace the parents, love and attention.
