

History is full of such successful people who started off in extremely arduous circumstances, but later they were counted among world's victorious and eminent personalities. Success, honour and fame, unlike wealth, are not served on silver platter. Even to inherit wealth, one needs to have wealthy forefathers. You can buy worldly commodities with money, but you cannot buy happiness with it. Sometime, it takes decades to earn a good name but a fraction of moment to be ignominious and derogatory.