

Q31

We can make our lives beautiful and charming by understanding the aesthetic activity of the spirit in all aspects of life and appreciating beauty in everything we do. Beauty itself would be a source of pleasure.

Q34

What the writer meant by "Beauty is not an ornament to life," is that beauty is an essential part to both life and things made by man. Beauty shapes the object and life just like moral values do in life. Beauty itself is the soul of human being life.

Q37

Yes, art and beauty does affect our life and more, as they art and beauty shape up both objects and life in a spiritual and aesthetic manner. Life without beauty is nothing but a worn out house. Beauty and art gives you a feeling of satisfaction.

Q1)

A1) The author has lamented in the text that beauty, art or passion is just not limited to artists or scientists but it should be practised and embraced by everyone. Unfortunately art has almost vanished from the lives of workmen and these workmen have no longer recognize the aesthetic activity of life or soul. When there is aesthetic ^{of life}, we learn to appreciate the beauty of thing and life which is common to all men & human beings.

Q2)

A2) The difference between an ordinary man and artist is that an artist is someone who admires life and beauty and ~~that he~~ strives to make that beauty appear in his or her work. Whereas for an ordinary man beauty is just another accessory to life.
