Parents are the greatest gift of God. They play a crucial role in the upbringing of a child. For better upbringing of children parents should be educated as this is the most important factor in bringing up a child. An educated mother would teach children good manners and discipline more efficiently. Children of educated people have impressive personalities and they owe their achievements to their parents. It is duty of children to obey their parents and care for their parents when parents get old. Their job is to take care for them not only in health but even in illness and arrange financial services. The love of parents can never be replaced.
