We are examining the people in our whole life. We are in searching of friends, but we are getting enemies on every step. Friends have to find, but enemies ^{are} always here for us. But the same question is arising in my mind that who is the enemy? There are lot of people in every human's life and we have to spend our life with them. We cannot live alone. Our family, relatives, neighbours, colleagues, friends and so many other people are the part of our life. Our mentality did not match with many people but we cannot insulate from them. Sometimes we have to continue the relation for expedience.
