We keep testing people throughout our life. We are always in search of friends, but find bad blood at each step. Friends have to find out while hypocrites make themselves available. Hence, it is beside oneself to find out that who one's true enemies are. Every person is surrounded by twenty or even hundreds of people. He has to get by with them. We cannot live alone. Our family, relatives, neighbours, associates, colleagues and other individuals are always a part of our lives. It is lifelong matter. Many persons are like Greek to us, but we cannot part with them. Sometimes, we must continue our relationship under the umbrella of compromise.
