History is full of those peoples who started their lives from the extremely hard circumstances, however, in the future, they became successful and considered to be famous personalities of the world. So, neither respect nor fame can be given to you freely, but money can be given so. For acquiring that there is also a condition for it, that money should be inherited to you from your forefathers. From money you can buy worldly things, but you cannot buy happiness with it. Sometimes people spend most of their time to earn respect, but whereas for earning disrespect a short span of time is enough for it.
