History is replete with such people who began their lives with extremely difficult situations, but eventually were counted among the successful and renowned personalities of the world. Success, respect and fame is never presented in a silver spoon. Only wealth ^{can be} is presented in a silver spoon. Even for that, it is necessary that your ancestors have wealth, only then you can inherit it. Although you can buy worldly possessions through wealth but you can not buy happiness. Often, it takes decades for a person to earn respect but a single moment is enough to disgrace him.
