Q. NO 7

Introduction:

The system of Public administration and governance in Islam is by far the most scientific and comprehensive sets of principles for effective administration as it incorporates both moral and spiritual dimensions. The concept of public administration in Islam is more of human welfare generic than the implementation of law and order. The prophet (PBUH) set an exemplary standard for us Muslims and the whole universe to follow in terms of governance and administration. In the Quran; "the good governance is based on the faith." This faith will make people feel safe because of doing what has become obligations and they will be asked for it.

System Of Public Administration & Governance

The public administration is to deal with all affairs of the public and to deal them with just, equity and unbiased decision. We can assume the trademark essentialities of a public administration from Prophet's (PBUH) life.

① Amanah - Authority:

The prophet (SAW) was revealed through the angels that it is ordained for those who believe to follow the Quran, the Prophet (PBUH), and those among you who have been bestowed with authority. This authority bestowed upon the public administrator is in fact an Amanah.

② Khilafat - role of leadership:

The role of caliphate in Islam is of profound importance as he is considered to be the supreme leader in the Islamic administration both politically and spiritually. The Caliphate is to whom the governors, judges and tax collectors are responsible.

③ Shurah - consultive body:

The prophet (PBUH) would ask his trusted fellow companions among whom take pay heed to their remarks and suggestion. So, In Islam, Public administration works through collective effort of the few trustworthy underlings of the Caliphate.

④

Justice:

Allah has ordained for each and every person, "to do justice" and so should a public administrator who as a Qazi is endowed with authority in this world to judge prudently and fairly.

⑤

Accountability:

It involves the existence of a mechanism which ensures that both politicians and officials are answerable for their actions, performance and use of public resource. According to Hadith; "Each one of you is a guardian and each guardian is accountable to everything under his care."

⑥

Rule Of Law:

It involves the rule of Law which is strictly based on social equity. In equality, one is treated equally on the basis of justice.

⑦ Responsibility:

It provides the principle of government, which is answerable to the people. The responsible government is always relevant for the good governance. The public administration in Islam calls for each and every administrator to be responsible to its people. The administrators are responsible to the caliphate and caliphate himself is responsible to his people, and Allah. Thus, when everyone is God fearing, then responsibility ensures a good governance.

⑧ Public Welfare:

The prophet said that the best among you is the one who is best in conduct with his people. Therefore, a Muslim society ensures public welfare and demands to be just and kind with the public.

⑨ Brotherhood:

When prophet (PBUH) arrived in Madina, the Prophet (SAW) introduced and established a system of brotherhood. Where each and every Muslim person was ascribed brother of another. The immigrants and the helpers thus become brothers for life.

⑩ Public as Priority:

There are no personal favors or nepotism in the public administration in Islam. The administration has been set up as means for people to avail their birth rights as priority.

Quranic Guidance Of Good Governance:

Good governance is a way of measuring how public institutions conduct public affairs and manage public resources in a preferred way. Holy Quran through its verses either directly or indirectly has guided Muslims in the field of good governance. The Holy Quran says; "Indeed, it is Allah who is the provider, the firm professor of strength." The Holy Quran also says "The command is for none but Allah." In Islam, Allah alone is the law giver and believer could neither resort to totally independent legislation nor could they modify any law laid down by God!

Conclusion:-

The Islamic system of public administration and governance is based upon the Quran and Sunnah. The basic rules and principles are found in Quran but the details are for the Muslim jurists to extract from the sources. The system of public administration is all about to serve the society effectively or according to rule of Islam.
