Translation:

We always keep checking on people. We are always in search of friends but all we get are enemies on every step. Friends have to search but enemies are available ready-made. Then again that question arise in mind that who is this enemy? Every man has hundred or thousands of people in life. Life has to spend with these people. We can not live alone. Friends, relatives, neighbours, people of town, friends and many others are part of ^{our} life. It is a matter of whole life. Although we can not understand many people, still we can not live a part from them. Sometimes relation has to carry out just on compulsion and expediency.
