

Parents: A Great Blessing

One is blessed to have one's parents alive. This is because they make the most important contribution in a child's brought-up. If one's parents are well-educated, they ^{would} inculcate good values in one's personality. A child owes his achievements to his parents. Therefore, he should look after them when they grow old. He should assume responsibility for all their needs from medical prescriptions to funeral arrangements. In a nutshell, nothing in this world can replace the benevolence and affection of parents.

Idea and sentence structure are generally ok. Connectivity is also ok. Do not include examples in precis. Just give their gist.

Total number of words = 269

Reduced to = 81