The theories of International Relations has been divided in terms are approaches and theories. Basically the Epistemology is the study of Methods, approaches will be followed by it and ontology is the study of Knowledge, theories will be followed by it. While these are divided into types

These are divided into two types.

- (i) Narrow view
- (ii) Broader View

(i) Narrow View:

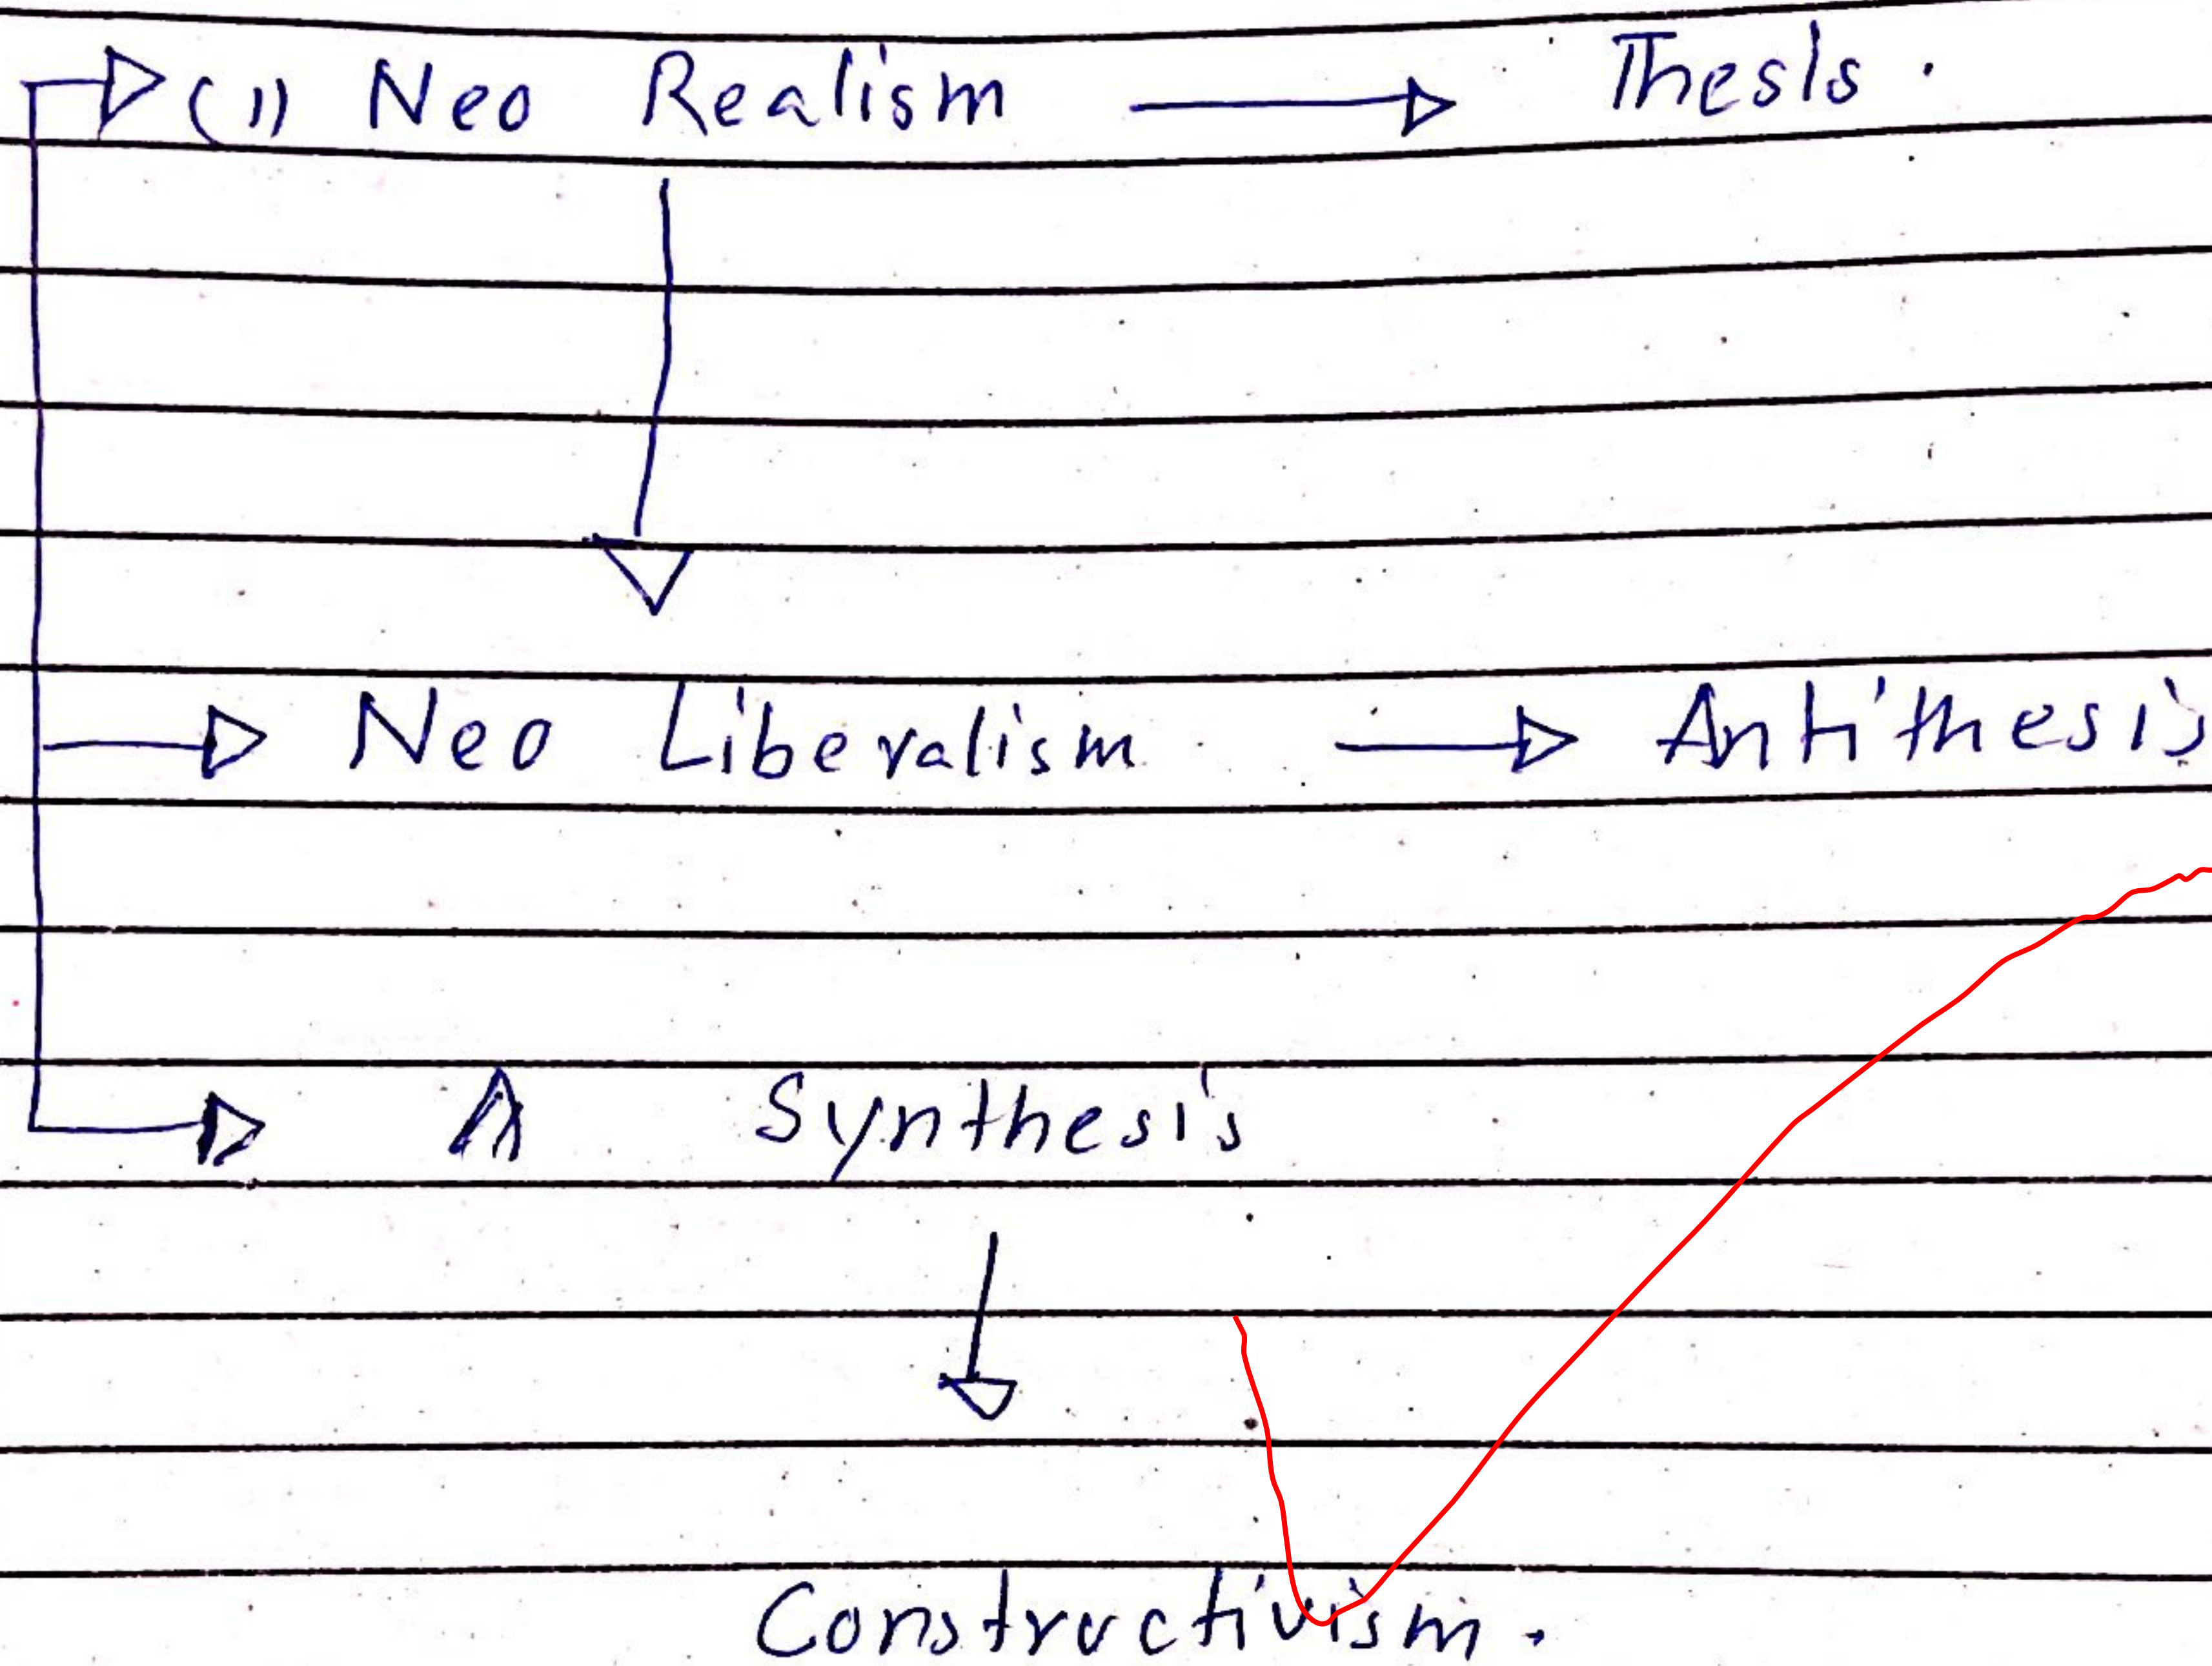

On the level of International Relation there is only one significant Actor that is state. It is the concept relationship among the states. The relationship among the states is called the politics. so Basically the Narrow view app is on state level. Furthermore, it is classified into some theories which are basically on state level.

Classification :-

There are three Paradigm of International Relations.

- (i) Neo-Realism
- (ii) Neo-Liberalism
- (3) Constructivism.

Neo Realism is basically a thesis and Neo Liberalism is the Anti-thesis of Neo Realism. While these both have synthesis that is Constructivism.

This is called the Narrow School which is on state level.

2) Broader view:

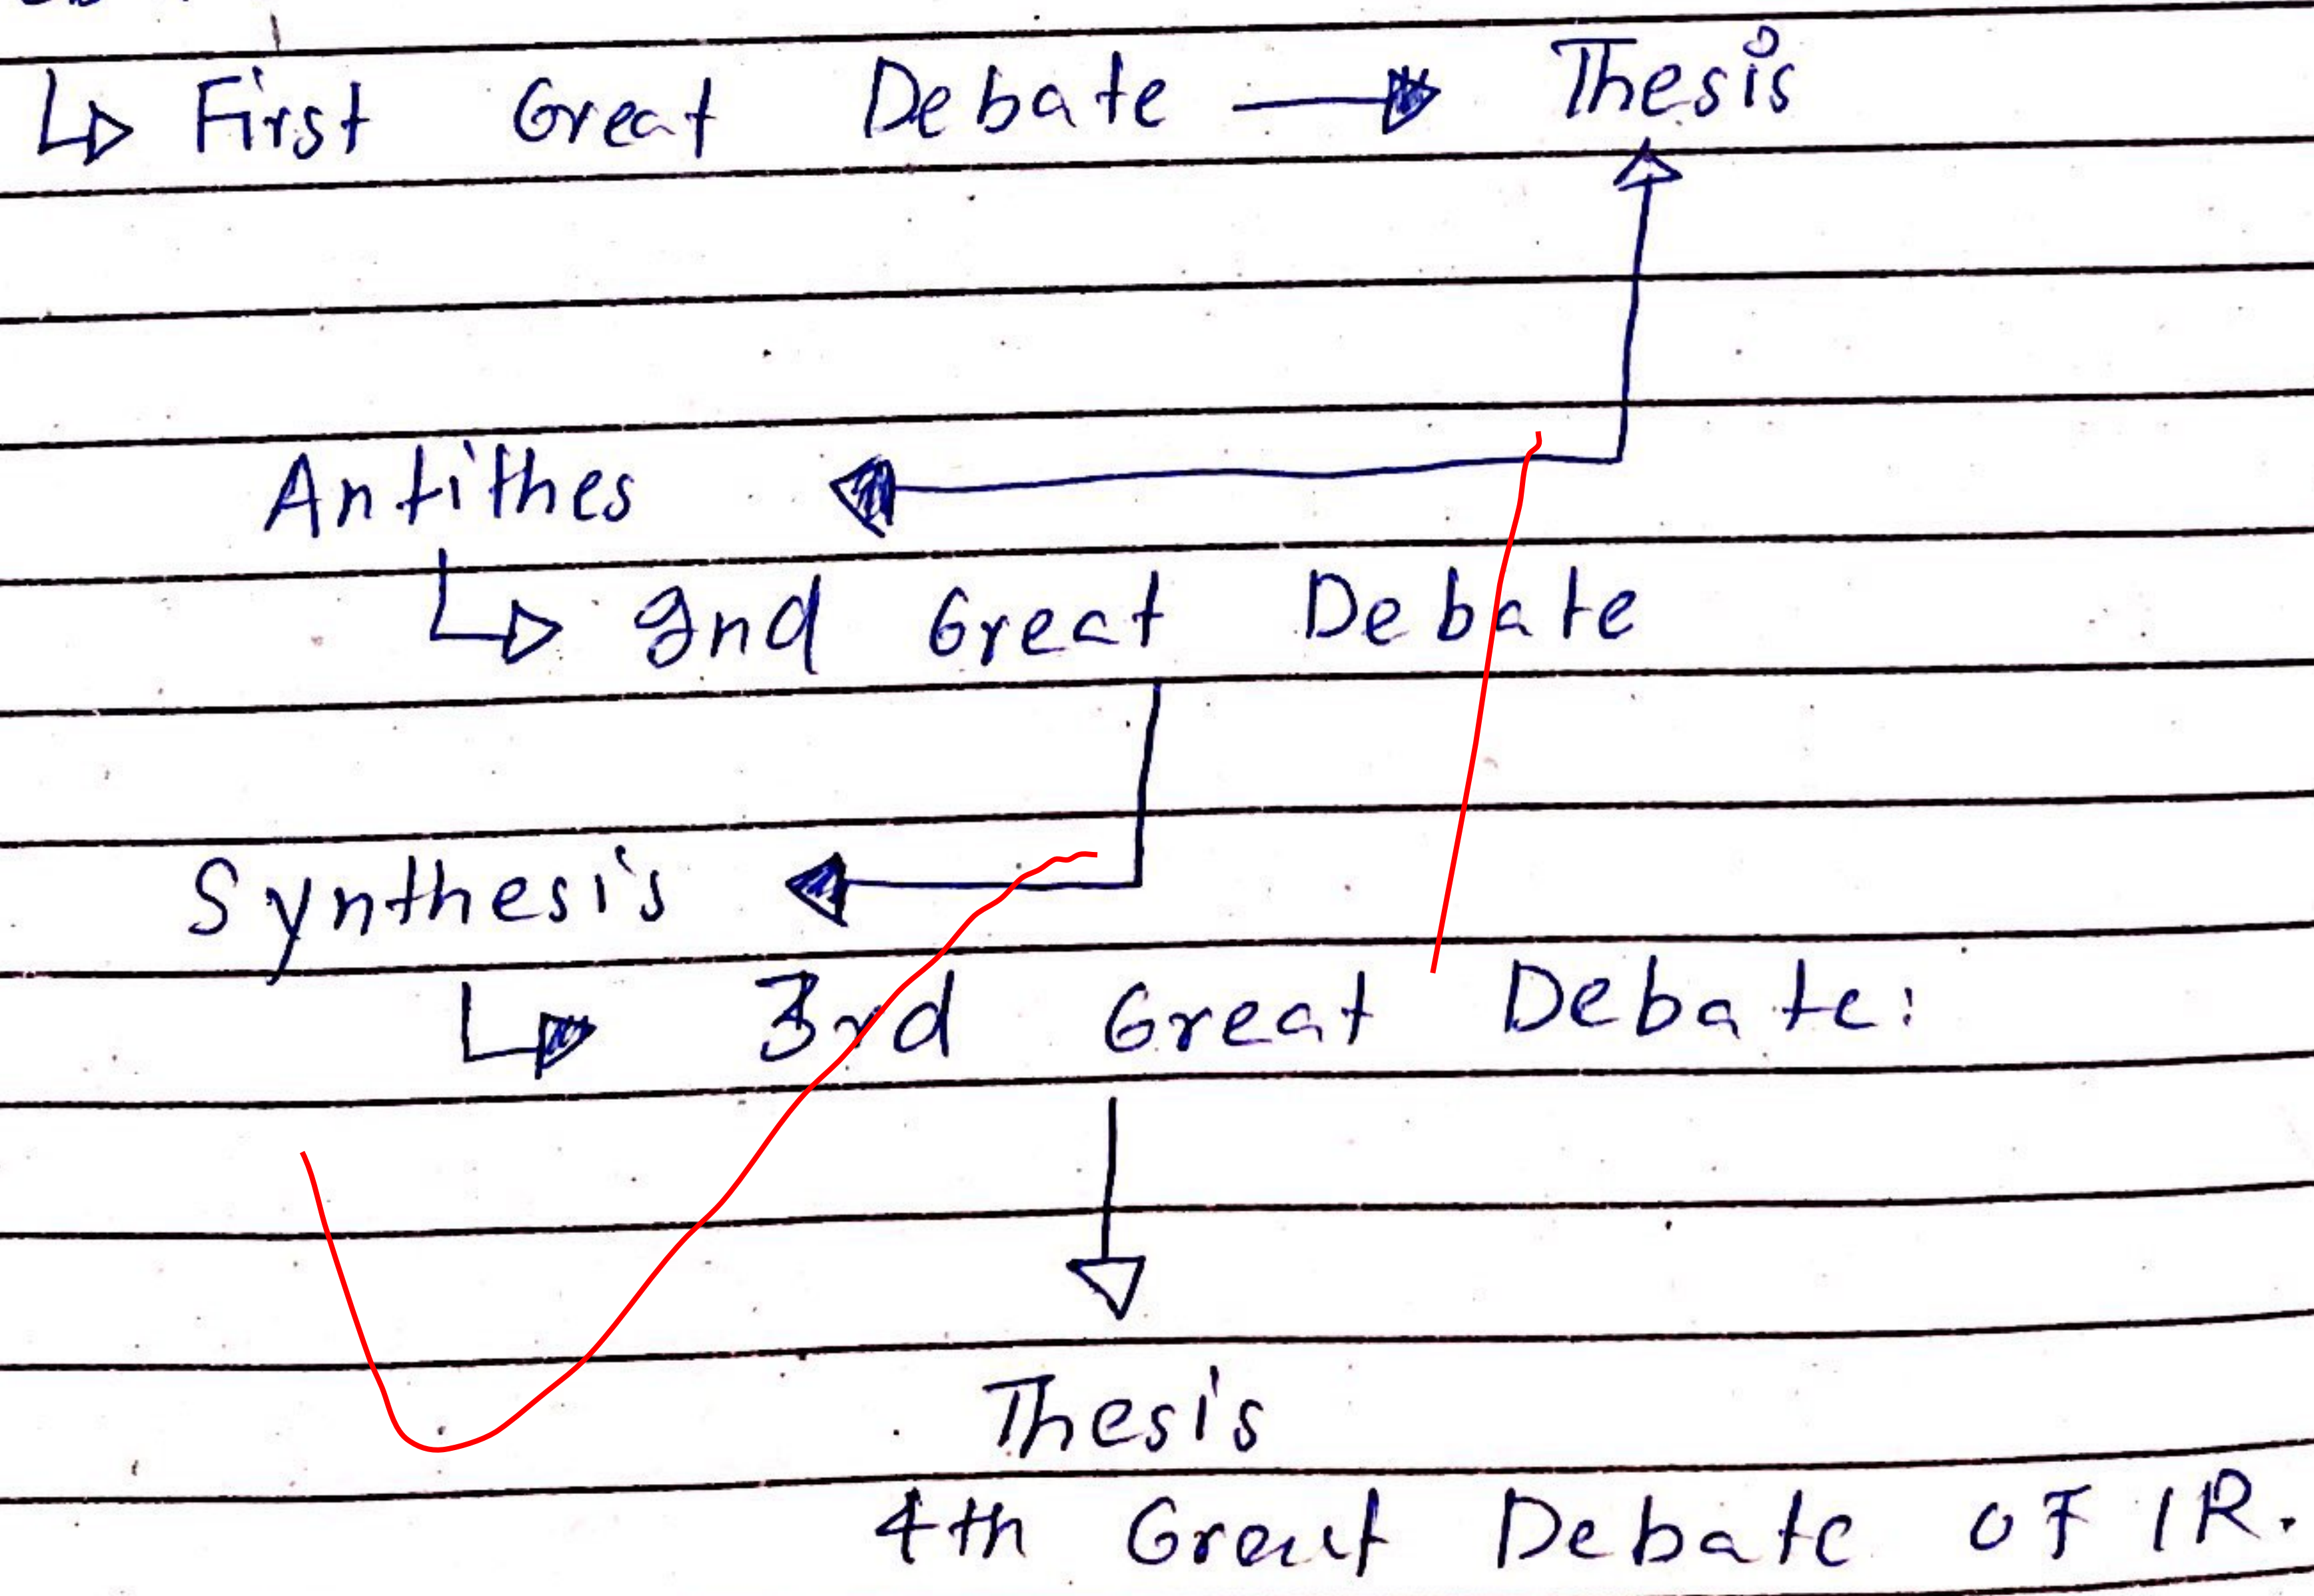

While IR is not only the study of relation between states. It is the study of state and Non state. It have proper theories, proper approaches that may be individual, MNC's on the level of society with respect to sociological, economical and political dimension etc.

These approaches consist on Debates. There are main 4 debates of IR. Basically these are thesis, antithesis, and synthesis of every approach. these are discussed following:

- (1) First Great Debate IR
- (2) 2nd Great Debate IR
- (3) 3rd Great Debate IR
- (4) 4th Great Debate IR

The Flowchart / diagram is follow:
Debates:

(1) First Great Debate of IR:

The First Great Debate of IR came in 1920-1930. Basically it is based on individual level. On the leaders action, human, specific speeches and argument of leaders that are counted in 1st Great Debate. It is classical Debate. Known as Traditionalism. It is a basically the role of leaders when their role is comparing with the old/previous leaders. The main theory of 1st Debate is Classical Realism and classical Idealism.

(2) 2nd Great Debate:

The 2nd Great Debate came in 1950. It is a basically develop methodology which is used to identify the behaviourism, scientism, scientific and Revolution these are approach of it.

(3) 3rd Great Debate:

The third Great Debate came in 1960 to 1970. It is a basically level. It is basically consist of Positivism, Functionalism, structuralism which is known as Neo Debate; while it have 2 main theories: Neo Realism and Neo Liberalism.

(4) 4th Great Debate:

It is basically came in 1990's onwards.

It is a basically society level means any actor of International of Society.

For examples: Multinational companies, NGO's, Media civil, society, state individual etc.

The main approach of it Post Positivism, post Functionalism and Post Structuralism.

People called it post-truth. Its main theories are Constructivism, Post modernism, Critical theory, and Feminism.

Some theories of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th Debates

Classical Realism! (1st Debate)

Any human's being the power of negative orientation that is called classical Realism.

Classical Idealism (1st Debate):

Any role of leader that is cooperative, and positive that is classical Idealism.

Neo Realism! (3rd Debate)

The military oriented of states, war oriented, power oriented policies of states is Neo-Realism.

(2) Neo Liberalism (3rd Debate)

The cooperation, peace, diplomacy, Int: organization etc called on state level that is called Neo-Liberalism.

Constructivism:

On the level of state & sub state elements on state and institution. that is Constructivism.

Post Modernism:

The Role of Media is Post Modernism

Critical Theory:

Whenever the criticism on capitalism system discussed the critical theory is followed.

Conclusion:

So the theories and approaches are divided in broader and narrow views, specifically some theories are applied on international state level and some are non state level, only epistemology and theory is applied in international relations.
