“Symbiotic Relationship of Parent and Child”

Parents play a crucial role in the development of a responsible child. They invest their heart and soul to provide them better education, teach them good manners and make them disciplined and loyal citizens. These attributes will enhance their personality and polish their character. This will make children more successful and worthy in their future life. However, it is also an utmost responsibility of every children to pay them back, whenever they face any health issue or weak moments and respect them after their death with dignity.
