We scrutinize people for whole life. We remain in the search of friends, but enemies appear on every step. Friends are to be searched out. Ready-made enemies are available. Then, that question arises is arising on the nerves of mind that who the enemy is. There are ^{ten} hundreds or thousands of people in the life of every human being. Life has to be spent with all of them. We cannot live alone. Family, relatives, neighbors, regional people, acquaintances, loved ones, and many other people remain part of our life. It is the matter of entire life. Many people are out of sanity; however, despite that we cannot live without connection with them. Sometimes, ~~cut-off~~ relationship has to be fulfilled out of mere liability or betterment.

Solution:

We tend to test people throughout our lives. Our quest for companionship persists, yet adversaries/ enemy continue to cross our paths. The pursuit of friendship becomes imperative, while foes seem to be readily available. Thus, the same query arises in our minds: who, indeed, is the ultimate adversary? In the life of every individual, there exist scores or hundreds of people. To coexist with all of them becomes incumbent. We cannot live alone. Family members, relatives, neighbors, acquaintances, colleagues, confidants, and various others continue to become part of our lives. It is an enduring affair, wherein numerous individuals are unable to comprehend it, yet we cannot ignore it. At times, upholding relationships becomes an inevitable obligation dictated either by circumstances or personal gain.
