Translation:

We keep on judging people for our whole life. We continue ~~to~~ searching for for? but meet enemies at every step. Friends are to be searched for while enemies are easily available. ✓
That question is arising again in my mind that who is the enemy after all. There are twenties ^{scores} or hundreds of people in the life of every human. We have to spend life with all of them. We cannot live alone. Family, relatives, neighbours, people of the town, friends, dear ones and many other people continue becoming part of our life. It is a matter of whole life. Many people are not compatible but still we cannot part our ways with them. Sometimes, the relationship has to be carried on as a compulsion or the wisdom.

Solution:

We tend to test people throughout our lives. Our quest for companionship persists, yet adversaries/ enemy continue to cross our paths. The pursuit of friendship becomes imperative, while foes seem to be readily available. Thus, the same query arises in our minds: who, indeed, is the ultimate adversary? In the life of every individual, there exist scores or hundreds of people. To coexist with all of them becomes incumbent. We cannot live alone. Family members, relatives, neighbors, acquaintances, colleagues, confidants, and various others continue to become part of our lives. It is an enduring affair, wherein numerous individuals are unable to comprehend it, yet we cannot ignore it. At times, upholding relationships becomes an inevitable obligation dictated either by circumstances or personal gain.
