PRINCIPLES OF TRIAS POLITICS

There there are four major principle of this theory.

① No Branch will interfere with the other branches power and authority. No branch can control the action of another branch.

② Role of Legislative:

There role is to make the laws for the people. Its role is not under the influence of another branch.

③ Role of executive:

They will executive the law through PM cabinet. This branch will implement the laws.

④ Role of Judiciary:

They will interpret the laws according to the constitution of a country. They have authority of judicial review.

analyze his theory by giving pros and cons of this theory.

SYSTEM OF CHECKS AND BALANCE

This system was introduced to check the actions of one branch through another branch to balance the power. The purpose of this system is to use power positively for the national interest only.

SYSTEM OF CHECKS AND BALANCE IN US:

For in US Congress will make the laws, which can be labelled unconstitutional by US judicial review if it was not according to the basic US constitutional. Similarly, In US, President cannot declare war or treaty without approval of senate.

Aristotle of 18th Century:

There are some similarities between Montesquieu's political thought with Aristotle's political thought that he called the Aristotle of 18th century.

① Practice and Action:

They both believe on the actions and practices. They were the men of action not of thought.

② Both Are Realist:

They both are realist and believe on existing of world without having idealistic approach.

of State or government such as monarchy, Republic and despotism.

④ Ancient History:

They both use ancient history to describe their political philosophy. — ?

⑤ Change in Constitution:

Both think that even the same form of government in different country, there are also some differences between them because other factors such as soil, climate, location etc make major differences. For example UK and Pakistan, both have parliamentary form of government but still there are major difference between them.

⑥ Have Influence:

Both have influence of physical world, Human nature and life.

⑦ Both Are CONSTITUTIONALIST:

Both talk about the constitutional outlook. Montesquieu gave the constitutional concept of "separation of power". He was inspired by Aristotle that's why he has similarities with Aristotle.

8) Work in Political Philosophy:

Both wants to introduce some changes in political system. For this purpose both work in political philosophy.

CONCLUSION:

Montesquieu's concept of separation of powers made him a unique and popular person. Today's world politics is using his political philosophy to correctly stabilize their countries.

about the Security. Then to secure his life he made some political representatives to secure his life, liberty and property but unfortunately those politician made the laws to control citizen and to promote self interest.

General will:

He proposed an idea of general will to introduced populist representation of the people, for the people and by the people.

General will is the combination of individual will and the laws are made under the will of every individual. According to this general will everyone is responsible to himself because he made laws according to his own choice.

Purpose OF THIS CONCEPT:

Its main purpose is to give absolute freedom to the individual as he had in state of nature. If we have popular sovereignty under this system then, no one blames another person for his freedom. Each person is responsible to himself.

IS THIS THEORY APPLICABLE IN TODAY'S WORLD:

Today countries have the larger population and vast territory so, to implement this

System is practically impossible
But in small territories with less population, this system
can be applicable such as in Switzerland, people are following this theory.

CONCLUSION:

In the Sumner, he was talking about absolute freedom
and popular sovereignty which was a great step towards the promotion of basic needs
of human life.

MAXISM:

Maxism is the theory
about classless society which was Purposed by Karl Marx.

INTRODUCTION:

In his philosophy of Maxism he has talking about a society which was classless,

no people own properties
and means of production, in free market. In this type of system every person own everything.

BACKGROUND OF MARXISM:

Marxism is a philosophical and political theory
to control the monopoly of bourgeois in industries. They suppressed the working class.
Working class works most of the time in industries and still get very minimum wage.
Bourgeois hold all private property
means of production and surplus values.

Revolution of a Proletariat:

Proletariat need to take action against capitalist bourgeois and form a classless society which he named as communist society.

But to achieve communism,
state should pass through the socialism. After achieving the communism we have end of history according to him

short answer.

Capitalism → Socialism → Communism

CONCLUSION!

This theory was the base of Russian revolution. This philosophy has its own merits and demerits. But such a country can easily survive
in economic crisis situations.
During the Great Depression
of USA there was a 24% unemployment in US
and Russia was not facing any economic crisis due to Communism.

Introduction:

Interest groups are those group which just works to promote their interest. They have no concern with other national and people stability.

Functions:

a) Build pressure on government to get benefits.

Why? To get benefits, sometimes organizations, person or even countries play their role to manipulate the sake of government.

b) Some time works for the welfare of the nation

Sometimes this groups also works for the benefits of a country.

c) Political and Economic stability

They can perform their role to stabilize the political and economic condition of a country.

d) Reduce external interference:

They can be helped to reduce the external interference in internal affairs of a country.

How its effectiveness is different from Pressure group:

Pressure groups are more effective than interest group because interest groups are just working for their interest whereas pressure groups are working for the interest of a big groups such as a state or a company.

In Pakistan, Mairaj Riaz is the best example of pressure group who promote his personal interest by manipulating political system through the use of money power and the support of external forces such as organization, leaders etc.
