

Precis:

A well-educated, intellectual, or brave man like making money but enjoy the sensation of winning it rather than money itself. A good soldier's main mission of life is to win battles, not to be paid for winning them. Similarly, churchmen baptize and preach not only for money. Likewise, for courageous and well-educated doctor, the whole main object to their lives is not fees. Comparably, all other's willing men; their work is more important than their fee.
