6. Conclusion

Educational system of a country is the backbone of its development. Youth is skilled by the educational system to be part of the national machinery. They contribute into the growth of their country according to their abilities and strengths.

Education is a weapon for the nations to use for the country's growth and development.

When we talk about our own educational system it is observed that there are many flaws that need to be identified. Having a flawed educational system is the reason for a failed state. Among many other flaws in our education system the most common is the neglect of enhancing intellectual ability.

Intellectual ability is the ability to reason, create and think out of the box. This ability is necessary for generating new ideas and genuine thoughts. Due to the same old courses
