Rough draft:-

- Money-making is not the chief objective of well-educated, intellectual or brave man.
- all the healthy-minded people like making money ought to like it and enjoy the sensation of winning it; it is something better than money.
- The aim of a good soldier is to win the battles, not to be paid for winning them.
- The clergyman's object is to baptize and preach not to be paid for preaching.
- The doctors like fees no doubt; yet if they are brave and well-educated the entire object to their lives is not fees.

• And so with all brave men, their work comes first, their fee second.

Precise:

Money is the need in everyone's life. But it can't not be the main aim of a well-educated and brave man. A brave soldier concerns the honour and victory more than his pay. A clergyman's aim is to groom the people morally than its payback. A good doctor values the health and life of his patient more than his fees. Thus, for all the brave and broad-minded men, their work is the first priority than money.
