Real Professionalism

With a true gentleman making money is never the chief objective of life.

Brave people perform their duty, not because it brings them money but because they love it. For instance, a good soldier fights, not because he is paid for it but because he loves to win battles. Similarly, the motivation for a good doctor is to cure the patient, rather than the fee. Money comes to true professionals as a reward for their good work.
