

Prime focus of professional work.

Money is not the primary preference of a wise man. Professionals do their job, enjoy the feeling and procedure of acquiring money but their prime focus is their work. Likewise, a soldier wishes to win battles, a clergyman to preach and a doctor to cure the sick regardless of the money paid to them. They would prefer losing money if they have to choose between money and work. Money is very essential for all the educated men but is secondary to work.

main idea is picked and discussed

over all content is average

word count is missing

need improvement in expression of content

6/20