

Title: Money As a Secondary Motive.

The author argues that it is important for well-educated, intellectual and brave individuals to prioritize money above all else. It is emphasized that while everyone enjoys money, it should not be the primary focus of one's life. Similarly, individuals with a healthy mindset should appreciate making money without making it their ultimate objective. It is suggested that for all courageous and properly trained individuals their work come before any monetary compensation, although the latter remains important.

Name: Mahenow

Batch : 51