

Financial Power

- US President has financial powers.
- US President can appoint the ambassadors.
- No financial powers.
- Can not appoint ambassadors.

Foreign Affairs

- US President can involve in foreign affairs.
- He can sign an agreement with <sup>other</sup> diplomats.
- He has powers to suspend the executive officers.
- Could not involve in foreign affairs.
- Could not sign agreement.
- Can not suspend officers.

Judicial Power

- He can call for pardon to court disobedience.
- He can appoint the judges and remove them.
- No appoint in judicial agencies.
- Can not appoint Judges.

Executive Powers:

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| ● US President has power to appoint the high officers and executive officers. | ● Prime Minister of UK has no power to appoint officers. He appoint with the consent of Parliament. |
|---|---|

Appointments

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| ● US President elected by the majority vote of congress. | ● PM of UK elected by the vote of parliament. |
|--|---|

Answerable

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| ● US President is not answerable to congress. | ● PM of UK is answerable to members of Parliament. |
|---|--|

Veto Power

- |                                |                  |
|--------------------------------|------------------|
| ● US President has veto power. | ● No veto power. |
|--------------------------------|------------------|

Bill Pass or reject

- |  |                                    |
|--|------------------------------------|
| US President has power to pass or reject any bill. | ● Can not pass the bill or reject. |
|--|------------------------------------|

Q. NO. 2

To what extent is it true that the President of US is powerful than PM UK. Justify comparative analysis.

Ans

Comparative analysis b/w President of US and PM of UK.

President of United States:

Prime Minister of United Kingdom:

Power:

- President of US has more power than Prime Minister of United Kingdom.

- Prime Minister of United Kingdom has less power than that of power of President of US.