Work is superior than money

Money may not be the chief objective of well-educated and intellectual people. Although it is very important to make money but the process of earning money is a lot satisfying than just making money. Lot of brave men earn really well but the only thing that satisfies them is their honesty with their job. When they work hard and give their hundred percent to the job they get the feeling of contentment and satisfaction. For them money is always the secondary option. The first and the primary option is always the work.
