Title : The Real Requirement of a Profession

Precis:

A wise man can never have a money-centred approach towards life. His profession holds primary position, and the earning coming out of it, is secondary. He belongs to the category of people who are more concerned about the requirements of their profession, and money is not primary goal for them. For example, the real purpose of a soldier is to fight in the battlefield. Similarly, doctors having active conscience, prioritize lives of their patients, rather than making money. (79 words)
