Title: Heathy Minds Do Not Make Money their Sole Focus

An intellectual person cannot prioritize money above all else, just as they cannot prioritize their dinner as the main focus. The primary mission of a good soldier is to win battles, not merely to be paid for their victories. Clergymen focus primarily on preaching, not on being paid for their services. Doctors prioritize curing the sick over earning fees. Therefore, for all brave and properly trained individuals, their work comes first, while money takes a secondary role.
