Precis:

It is impracticable for a literate and courageous person to only think for money. For all same people, the feeling of winning money is far better than money itself. All professional people prioritize their work. They like to get paid for it, but money is not the only purpose of their existence. Hence, for all well-educated and confident people work is always on the top of the list. Whereas, to get money for it, is also important but not a prime objective.

Title: Work As A Priority.
