Title:- Money is important but money is not everything.

It is impossible for an intellectual person to prioritize money above everything else.

A healthy person likes his food, but food is not his main goal. Like a soldier likes to win a war and not make money. Similarly, the doctor's first priority is to heal the patient and not to make money. People in every profession love money but making money is not their first priority, their duty is their first priority.
