Title : Work is always more important than money.

Precis Paragraph :

It is not possible for a sensible person to give more importance to the money than their work. A person who is knowledgeable will always give priority to their work rather than the money. They put their work as a chief object in their life. The main goal of their work is not for the desire of any reward, but for the sake of their own satisfaction. In our daily lives we have so many examples from different professions who put their work on the very first and money on the second number.
