Work Important than Money

It is physically impossible for a well educated, intellectual or brave man that money would be the main objective of his life. All the healthy people like money, but they might like something more better than money. Some examples are: a soldier main goal would be to won a battle, the clergyman's to baptize and preach. Similarly the doctor's main goal would be to save lives. So for all educated men their work would comes first and fee second, however it's important.
