Title: Well-educated and Brave
People Prioritize Work Instead of Money.

It is impossible for an intellectual and or brave man to consider money or dinner the principle object of his thoughts. Though healthy people like dinness, their dinner is not the chief object of their lives. The healthy minded people should cherish the sensation of winning money as it is better than money itself. For the well-educated and good people the soldier, the clergyman and the doctor, fees is essential but their priorities are their duties. Similarly, all the other brave and well-trained men prefer their work first and then the fees.
