

Translation

If the world does not allure you, if the fear of Allah brings tears to your eyes, if the contemplation of the hellfire evokes reverence for the divine within you, if you worship Allah as commanded, if you find virtue appealing and you refrain from sinful paths then you are righteous. Some people are born inherently righteous and some strive for it. It is fortunate to be inherently righteous but to attain it is a continuous journey of purification and struggle. It takes time and endurance of tribulations.
