Success by empowering their population with technical and vocational skills. Further, the advancement of civilization depends on skills of its population. The skilled and advanced nations have better buildings, (✗) road networks and overall quality of life. The Sydney Opera house of Australia is an example. Therefore, a society needs to empower its inhabitants through skills. Such policies which focus on vocational and other technical skills are <sup>3</sup> needed. In this way, the foundation for a truly educated and empowered society could be laid.
