

PART-II

QUESTION NO. 2

QUESTION OF COURAGE, HEALTH AND AGE IN

GENERAL

Courage is considered to be the best gift of nature. It helps to built calmness and determination in danger. Thus, it must be present physically and morally in generals. In contrast, health, though, it is precious but it has nothing to do with the great spirit of the general. Moreover, the question of age is difficult to find what age of general is best to beat enemy in the war. There are two views regarding this context. The first, stands with the young generals - considering them being the highest prizes for the war. The second stands with the generals age of 40 - as being the highest prize for the war. However, the enthusiasm of young generals and experience of old generals can not be comparable. As an old general can beat a young general with maturity, boldness, advance knowledge and judgement. And, same goes for the young generals which are encouragingly increasing nowadays.
