6. Conclusion.

"Unendurable is the beginning of the curve of joy", said Diana Barnes in his book Nightwood. The quote can be applied on every individual's life because happiness and success can never be God-gifted but they are earned. Those who face challenges with resilience to earn this possess a sharp vision like an eagle. This is the quality of some extra-ordinary people to go against the flow. Their strength helps them to counter the challenges in life. Like eagles they do not fear loneliness but stay resilient. The training to build these charismatic qualities begin right from the childhood and it extends through out the course of life. It does not only apply on an individual but also on families, societies, states, politics and enterprises. Some choose to go against the flow and others counter the challenges and win. but both in the end came out as eagles.

Eagle is a metaphor for strong, far-sighted, and critical thinkers. They prefer to stay alone that too on high places as mountains. Moreover, reaching that place is no fortune for them, ~~they~~ rather they go against the flow fighting the challenges and then reached the pinnacle. These strengths of all the individuals of a society decides their well-being as nation. Therefore, it is important to ~~build~~ a nation of eagles ~~and~~ instead of a crowd with robotic mentality.

An individual is best trained in childhood because whatever they learn in that life phase stays with them throughout the life. However, the impact of a specific ~~a~~ specific situation is not same for all the people. As the interactions of teenage also shapes their personality. For instance, a person with traumatic childhood can be a great critical thinker or a depressed individual with Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). So, it is important for child to be provided with fair and a productive environment that could help them shape their personalities.

Moreover, the individuals who overcome their childhood traumas turn out to be a great human. Their challenging childhood makes them ponder on the little things in life and they fight their inside battles alone or to reach the apex of their life. There are many successful personalities who overcome their challenging lives to reach where everyone only wishes to be. The current president of Türkiye

This talks of child's learning capability that is same for all not some quality that can distinguish one as an eagle.

How does that embody "eagles fly against the wind?"

you make it sound like every one who faces trauma can come out like this. Also you wording highlights that it is the benefit of trauma not the struggle of individual

How is that a trauma. Either don't link it to the previous argument, and if you have linked it stick with it can be taken as example, as he used to sell le-made outside a football ground. and became a Hence, to reach the high positions in life one must go through the challenge and hardships in life.

Focus on his struggle not his outcome

The title or metaphor of being like eagle can not be attained for free. An individual has to go through challenges to be far-sighted having sharp vision like an eagle. Such individual ~~that~~ would become ~~at~~ goal oriented, and they stay well prepared for future challenges. This argument is also supported by Resilience theory of psychology but Dr. Norman Garmezy which says human nature is adaptable to circumstances, no matter how adverse. Hence, the sharpness of mind comes with the capacity to face challenges.

Its seems like you are telling how to become an eagle not what an eagle does

That's for all humans not eagles. Your topic is eagles not birds. there are certain qualities associated with symbol of eagle.
