Robert Whiting, an elderly US gentleman of 83 arrived in Paris at French customs.

He took a few minutes to locate his passport in his carry on. "You have been to France before?"

"Monsieur, the customs officer asked sarcastically. Mr. Whiting admitted that, "I had been to France previously. Then you should know enough to have your passport ready."

The American said, "The last time, I was here, I didn't have to show it." "Impossible, Americans always have to show their passports on arrival in France," sneered the Custom officer. The American gave Frenchman a long, hard look. Then he quietly explained, "Well, when I came ashore at Omaha Beach, at 4:40 am, on D-Day in 1944, to help liberate your country, I couldn't find a single Frenchman to show a passport to. You could have heard a pin drop.

One must have physical and moral courage. Voltaire regards courage and serenity of soul in danger, a greatest gift for command. Even though a later military writer was compelled by the determination and calmness of Joffre, although he did not have high regard for him/Joffre. A ~~healthy~~ health is also important but it is a relative quality. A great spirit needs no healthy body as the case studies of Wolfe and others show. Another thing is age for command, but it is difficult to determine the exact age that when the general ceases to be dangerous. Mostly young men get highest prizes of war, but there are also many counter cases when aged people got prizes of war. The level for courage in youth cannot be given exact figures. If old person has ability to take bolder decisions then his leadership will be beneficial. But undoubtedly, young general will usually be a good old one as evident by the recent lowering of age of our generals, even if cause
