Economy is the backbone of political system of a country

Countries have strong economy have strong political systems, are free from corruption -

→ Exports would be high imports minimum

→ Productivity maximum

China is well developed while example of undeveloped countries is India and Pakistan

→ Man power employment ratio high as compared to unemployed people - Benefiting country economy

→ Soft power instead of hard power like China is soft power want peace instead of wars and disputes - Imposing on trade and good affairs with other countries

→ with other countries strong political agreements on trade, development of infrastructure, education, health and productivity

→ Main point is peace, peace is basic motif of economic stability
