Question # 07

Translation

A student's purpose of life is to gain light of knowledge from teachers and books which can enlighten the dark paths of life for him. To fulfil this purpose, focus and consistency are required.

Every external factor that opposes it ought to be separated from the sphere of education. Otherwise, ^{there will be a} student's education will remain ^{precious} unfulfilled. And the time a student should have spent in gaining knowledge will be wasted in the intriguing interests of political activities.

More than political workers, our country is in need of such scholars that are simultaneously adept in Eastern as well as Western and religious as well as worldly education. Obviously, such versatile people can ^{only} be produced if ^{piz} political factors do not interfere in educational interests. It is said that ^{Attended in idiomatic and proverbial manner} our education standard is lower than that of Western countries. Upto an extent, it is a consequence of our economic conditions. Perhaps, it is not false to say that majority of our

(Precis)

Or beggary in India : a social conundrum

Mushroom Growth of Indian Beggars

The beggars have started to grow so vast in number in India that visitors from foreign countries have called Indian cities as cities of beggars. The reasons behind increased number of beggars include poverty, joblessness and population explosion. Another reason behind beg has its roots in religion. Indians possess a religious outlook of life. The faith of Indians gives them surity of salvation to those who give charity to beggars and donations to the needy. The fear of being cursed by beggars by saying in case of saying them no, leads masses to be generous to the beggars. However, giving charity to undeserving people is a misplacement of charity. There should be awareness in educated Indians about this issue. There are some beggars who are physically fit, some are richer than their partners and some are
