

Q2.

Curbing the Rise of Begging in India by Reforming Social Consciousness

Begging in India : a social conundrum

~~Begging is on the rise in India.~~
 There is no data on this rise but it is observed even by the tourists. ~~There is a need to root out the social impacts of begging.~~ Different factors are responsible for this rise in begging. A major one is the religious mindset of Indians whereby they consider charity and generosity towards beggars as a way of salvation. ~~Beggars single out people anxious to help the poor.~~ There are a number of beggars born into slavery begging. There are also some capable individuals who choose the life of begging. Begging has been going on for years because the ignorant public out of the fear of being scolded help beggars thrive. With the rise of an informed and an educated class of Indians, different ways for tackling this issue are being considered. It is the collective conscious of the people that is the needs to be reformed in order to root out begging. ~~The public should be informed of the negative impact of charity and the government too should take legal changes steps to curb the rise of begging.~~

Begging has become a prevalent and deep rooted challenge
