A child can be forgiven when he is afraid of demons, but the real tragedy of life is when men are afraid of life.

Fear is a natural emotion that every individual experiences at any age. The children are afraid of demons ^{Due to the} with the notion of unknown supernatural ~~idea~~ presence. They usually avoid going into demons ^{into} due to the fear of unknown or the interpellation process of stories heard about demons. But this fear is considered as part of the stages as the child ^{rem} grows up. The real tragedy is the fear of adults of life ^{Sentence structure} itself engulfs their whole life activities and lead them to stagnation and a ^{No Gist of outline no thesis statement and no attention grabber} profound sense of loss. ^{Incomplete and unstructured introduction}

While child fears demons is easily forgivable by the society as it is considered as the natural growing^{up} fear but the real tragedy of society is the deeper fear of individual ~~from life~~ as it poses a greater threat^{to} society; necessitating the prompt measures^{to be taken} to overcome the fear for a lively society.

The paragraph holds no information, it is just rephrasing of the topic.

The fear of darkness can be termed as Nyctophobia, a very common fear among children of between the age of six to twelve. This fear fades away as they grow up with the help of their parents' stories^{narrating the} of bravery and courage. The fear of life among the adults is a more complex and entangled one, ranging from fear of failures, confrontation, rejection, unknown and a wide array of fears that eventually put the individual to a tremendous disadvantage in the society.

As the fear of dark is a child hood fear and it outgrows as the child gain understanding and experience it is temporary and understandable. the parents and people around provide children with comfort and support in the form of stories of bravery, reassurance, ~~nightlights, distractions~~, love and affection and gradual exposure to such situation in order to grow normally. these ways show a greater amount of convincing facts that the fear of dark is forgiven by the society and is considered a normal fear of children.

Fear of darkness in children; don't take that literally. It means fear of the unknown in young and unwise is normal and can be forgiven as they do not know better.

Light of life is the real tragedy that occurs when adults are gripped by the fear of ~~light~~. It encompasses a myriad of anxieties including the feature of failure, uncertainty, rejection and many more.

ultimately leads a self-created fear of facing shame, anger, or guilt. It also leads to self-blaming and the individual in order to avoid all these avoid the activities to participate.

The fear of rejection is yet another fear of life felt by adults. They hesitate to participate in activities and actions in order to avoid ~~the~~ rejection from family or the person they don't want to lose. Such adults do not have the courage of saying no, or they are being too much people pleasers.

Irrelevant

The fear ~~of~~ ^{to} be isolated from the associations or groups of affiliation makes them create a sense self-rejection and eventually put them to live a sluggish and depressed life.

Adding up to the wide array of fears; The fear of unknown is the biggest fear among adults. It is an intense fear uncertain or unknown situations. The tendency to be afraid of what having no information about something a person will face escalating an intolerance of uncertainty. The feeling of uncertainty is the most dangerous among all fear. It brings great threat and disadvantage to the individual and society. Such people create a world of never ending fears of everything and anxieties around them, which they hardly escape. The life of uncertainty becomes their fate and certainty becomes unknown to them.

Similarly, the fear of confrontation among adults is also a feeling of self doubt at the fear of losing the argument in opposing ideas and differences in opinions. Based on personal perception and mental capabilities people have differences of opinions and fears these differences can sometime leads to fear. the person is not able to coexist with the opposite ideas and opinions and thus avoid confrontation with people. It leads to narrowed notion and perception of the world affairs.

The consequences of fear of life in adults are many fold. It not only destroys the individual life but also disturbs the familial life. It also poses great threat to society at many levels. Individuals who are capable of doing something good to society are afraid of life itself, is the biggest loss of society.

on individual level the fear of life traps a person into a self-made comfort zone. The fear of facing the peoples, the failure and low level of courage limit him/her to a small world of comfort created by them. Everything outside the walls of that comfort zone creates uncertainty for them, and uncertainty makes them feel anxious. To avoid that anxiety and feeling of distress they limit their life to the comfort zone only.
